Case to Be Carried to Higher Court

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—Charging that Judge Chester R. Shook erred when he held that part of Ohio new intangible tax law was invalid in a decision at Cincinnati, today, official attaches of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman's office this afternoon declared that immediate steps would be taken to obtain a review on the decision in the appellate court.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 22.—Judge Chester R. Shook of the Hamilton-co common pleas court here, today held that the distribution provisions of Ohio's intangible tax laws are illegal.

The decision, which affects every county in the state of Ohio was given in a suit brought by Robert Gorman, prosecutor of Hamilton-co, who contended that the $1,500,000 which Hamilton-co will collect this year in excess of its quota under the law, could not be legally given to the state treasurer for distribution among the counties which did not attain their quota of tax receipts.

CARRY CASE UP
Attorneys indicated following Judge Shook's decision, that the case will be taken to higher courts for a ruling.

Pending a decision by the supreme court, the distribution clauses of the law are virtually rendered inoperative throughout the state.

In rendering his decision, Judge Shook declared that the tax is local in its purpose and that taxes collected in one community for Curtin Believes Roosevelt Has No Authority; Struggle Is Forecast.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 22.—A broad hint that Mayor James J. Walker will refuse to vacate his office if he is ordered removed by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, was made in Supreme court today by John J. Curtin, the mayor's counsel, in arguing before Justice Ellis J. Staley in behalf of a writ restraining the Governor from proceeding in the Walker case.

After Curtin had vigorously declared the Governor had no jurisdiction; that he had denied Mayor Walker a fair trial; that he had accepted the Hofstadter "ex-parte" testimony as evidence and that the mayor has not been accorded the right to face his accusers, he said:

"A physical conflict might well ensue if an order were made by the Governor to remove the Mayor without jurisdiction."

The defendants went on trial before a special court constituted under the recent anti-terrorist decree signed by President von Hindenburg. The prisoners were the first to be tried under the decree.

Intense excitement prevailed as the trial got under way. Fears were expressed that Hitler's "storm troops" would break loose in revolt if the death sentences are meted out.

New York Hails Daring Aviator

Mollison to Spend Few Days in Gotham; Plans Shopping Tour Today to Purchase Clothing; Warns Wife Not to Cross Ocean As He Plans to Hop

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Captain James A. Mollison, hero of the first solo westward flight across the Atlantic ocean, planned to start his first full day in New York today with a shopping expedition to provide himself with clothes.

Amid a riotous welcome accorded the sandy-haired, slight Scotch aviator, as he brought his tiny plane, The Heart's Content, down at Roosevelt field yesterday, Mollison revealed he brought no attire with him except the suit he wore under his flying togs. Mollison flew here from St. John, N. B. Mollison was to spend two or three days in the city before hoping to complete his proposed round trip flight by flying eastward across the Atlantic.

TO STOP ONCE

Although he said the plane could carry enough gasoline for a non-stop flight, Mollison said he would stop at Harbor Grace, N. F.

The spontaneous reception which greeted the flyer at the field was to be supplemented within a day or two with an official welcome at city hall. Mayor James J. Walker was expected to be back from Albany for the function.

Messages from all parts of the world lauded the "daring" courageous Scot for his daring dash to victory in his little plane.

Most eager, however, was Mollison for the cables from his bride of a month, Amy Johnson, famous English Aviatrice.

He advised her not to come over here, as she planned, since he expected to "fly back almost any evening now."

Mollison was to visit the air field to see how the work of overhauling his plane was progressing.

"As soon as the ship is fit and the weather favorable," he said "I will make the return flight."

"I am not a bit afraid of the return trip because there are many days of tail winds ahead."

This, Mollison indicated, would be his last long flight. He said when he married Miss Johnson both agreed to give up hazardous flights.

"If this flight had not been planned before my marriage, I should not have undertaken it," he declared. But once you say a thing, you've got to go through with it."

COLORED MAN DRIVEN FROM HOME, ROBBED

Moses Miller, Corwin-st., Accused of Stealing Chickens by Two Men

IS ROBBED OF $8

Culprits First Steal Chickens Then Act

Entering his home Sunday at 2 a. m. and accusing him of stealing chickens, two unknown white men robbed Moses Miller, colored E. Corwin-st., and escaped with $8 and some change, police have been notified.

Mr. Miller said the two men knocked on the door of his home and ordered him out of the house, charging him with stealing five chickens which they held in their hands. Pulling the heads from two of the chicks and throwing the remaining three on the ground, the men said, "Stick 'em up." Whether or not the robbers had guns Mr. Miller was not sure, although he told Officer William McCrady that one of the men kept his right hand in a pocket.

SEARCH CLOTHING
They searched nearly all of Miller's clothing and ransacked the house, finding the $8 and some small change. They made a hurried exit, going west on Corwin-st.

Several hours after Miller reported the hold-up, Mrs. J. Teegardin of S. Washington-st., notified police that five chickens had been taken from a chicken coop in the rear of her home. Officer McCrady found two of the chickens and they were identified and claimed by Mrs. Teegardin.

It is presumed that the two culprits robbed Mrs. Teegardin's chicken coop, then went to Miller's home and used the chickens as an excuse to get Miller out of the house.

The men were strangers Mr. Miller told police.

Messages Pour in From Entire Nation; Unworried Over Finance TO ANSWER HOOVER

Plans to Discuss Farming on West Tour

By RAYMOND L. BORST

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Messages from all parts of the nation congratulating Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt on his demand for federal regulation of Wall street are pouring into the executive mansion, it was revealed today.

While the Governor has not made public any of the messages it was learned that many of them praise his "courage" for taking such a stand, particularly at a time when an effort is being made to raise $1,500,000 to finance the Democratic presidential campaign.

APPEARS UNWORRIED

Governor Roosevelt made it plain he is not worried over reports that his proposal for regulation of stock and commodity markets may cause financial interests to refuse to contribute to the campaign fund.

Hints have been thrown out by Roosevelt's advisers that he shortly will make a personal appeal to the "little fellows" in the Democratic party for contributions ranging from $1 to $5.

Nothing would please Roosevelt more than to have the campaign financed without the aid of "Wall Street interests," according to his close friends. Before the campaign is over, it is said, the governor will have considerable to say about "vested interests" and "international bankers."

PROHIBITION TOPIC

Roosevelt is expected to reply to President Hoover on prohibition in his speech at a Democratic rally at Sagitt, N. J., next Saturday. Roosevelt has told friends he believes the president is "vulnerable" on the wet-dry issue and that he intends to speak out straight from the shoulder.

Because of the removal proceedings against Mayor James J. Walker, the Governor has cancelled an engagement to address the state convention of the American Legion at Brooklyn next Friday.

Not more than a half dozen major speeches will be made by Roosevelt between now and the November election, although he will carry his campaign into more than a score of states during the next two months.

LEAVES SEPT. 12

It is understood that the Governor's leaving through the far west, beginning September 12, will be limited to about four major speeches. There will be brief talks, however, by the Governor in about a dozen cities. The next major speech will be delivered in the middle west and will deal with agriculture.

GUARDS HALT PRISON RIOT; DIN TERRIFIC

1,500 Convicts Plunge County Prison Into Blazing Inferno

PLOT DISCLOSED

Some Prisoners Burn Clothes, Mattresses

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—More than 1,500 convicts who plunged the county prison at Holmesburg into a six-hour inferno were under heavy guard and special patrol.

The uprising, revealed by authorities last night, was the third major uprising in the institution within two years.

Today the building is a shambles of blackened walls, doors and windows, blood-stained clothing and water-soaked cells and corridors.

The riot, planned in protest against the prison food, broke out all over the prison late Saturday night.

GUARDS MASSES

Every available guard was called back to duty and extra reinforcements were brought in from Moyamensing and Chestnut prisons. Nearly 1,250 guards were massed against the rioters.

Every fire hose in the prison was pressed into use, both to quench the enraged inmates and to quench the flames they started in their bedding.

The din became so terrific at times that motorists passing in Torresdale-ave stopped their cars to listen. A confused melody of shrieks, groans and curses could be heard outside the walls and wisps of smoke rose from the building.

Officials of the prison bureau of the plans for the riot on Monday day just before the evening shift.

In anticipation, fire hoses were connected and laid in readiness. All guards of duty were recalled. By the time it started, all guards had been mobilized.

BURNS MATTRESSES

At the first outcry the guards turned on the water. More than 1,500 convicts set fire to their mattresses and shoved them under the doors to force the wardens to unlock the doors.

Some of them nearly suffocated. The guards met this ruse by splitting up into "shock troops" of four or five men each, who opened the cell at a time, overpowered the occupants and dragged them off to other cells where there was nothing inflammable.

Some of the prisoners took off their clothing and set fire to it, it was reported.

At one time, several hours after the bedlam started, a number of frenzied convicts got loose in the corridors. Guards were called from other parts of the prison to subdue them.

Today everything at the prison was reported under control. Many of the ring leaders were said to have been placed in solitary confinement.

Drawn up in bill form, the governor's proposal called for five percent cuts on the first $1,000 of each employee's salary; 10 percent on salaries of $1,000 to $5,000, and 15 percent on all over $5,000. The governor hopes to have the act passed at the special session of the legislature which he will summon early next month.

GUARDS HALT PRISON RIOT; DIN TERRIFIC

1,500 Convicts Plunge County Prison Into Blazing Inferno

PLOT DISCLOSED

Some Prisoners Burn Clothes, Mattresses

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—More than 1,500 convicts who plunged the county prison at Holmesburg into a six-hour inferno were under heavy guard and special patrol.

The riot, planned in protest against the prison food, broke out all over the prison late Saturday night.

Today the building is a shambles of blackened walls, doors and windows, blood-stained clothing and water-soaked cells and corridors. The riot, planned in protest against the prison food, broke out all over the prison late Saturday night.

GUARDS MASSES

Every available guard was called back to duty and extra reinforcements were brought in from Moyamensing and Graterford prisons. Nearly 125 guards were massed against the rioters.

Every fire hose in the prison was pressed into use, both to quench the flames inmates and to quench the flames they started in their bedding.

The din became so terrific at times that motorists passing in Torresdale-ave stopped their cars to listen. A confused medley of shrieks, groans and curses could be heard outside the walls and wisps of smoke rose from the building.

Officials of the prison learned of the plans for the riot on Saturday just before the evening meal.

In anticipation, fire hoses were connected and laid in readiness. All guards off duty were recalled. By the time it started, all guards had been mobilized.

BURNS MATTRESSES

At the first outcry the guards turned on the water. More daring convicts set fire to their mattresses and shoved them under the doors to force the wardens to unlock the doors.

Some of them nearly suffocated. The guards met this ruse by splitting up into "shock troops" of four or five men each, who opened one cell at a time, overpowered the occupants and dragged them off to other cells where there was nothing inflammable.

Some of the prisoners took off their clothing and set fire to it, it was reported.

At one time, several hours after the bedlam started, a number of frenzied convicts got loose in the corridors. Guards were called from other parts of the prison to subdue them.

Today everything at the prison was reported under control. Many of the ring leaders were said to have been placed in solitary confinement.

Major Pitchers Show Fine Form

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—With the end of the major league races only a month away, pitchers are bearing down and turning in their best performances of the season.

Half a dozen masterpieces were hurled yesterday. Perhaps the most brilliant effort of the lot, all things considered, was the feat of Eppa Rugg, Alpha Omega River, 42-year-old Cincinnati veteran, in whitewashing Pittsburgh for the second time in eight days.

The team of major league southpaws has won only four games this year, and Pittsburgh was the victim on each occasion. Yesterday he won a 2 to 0 decision over Bill Swift, the Reds getting only four hits, but managing to bunch two of them with a walk and two flies in the third inning.

FERRELL SETS MARK

Wes Ferrell, Cleveland fireball hurler, is the first pitcher ever to win 20 games in each of his first four years in the majors. He hung up his 20th victory of the 1932 campaign by beating Washington, 11 to 5.

In the most brilliant hurling duel of the day, Johnny Allen, Yankee rookie, bested Blackholder of the Browns, 3 to 1, each team getting only three hits. Gehrig's single with the bases full in the third inning was enough to give Allen his 12th victory in 14 starts.

Lon Warneke hung up his 18th win holding the Phils to four singles and whitewashing them 2 to 0. He helped win his own game by singing and scoring the Cubs' first run.

The Cubs have won eight of their last nine starts and 11 of their 17 games since Charley Grimm became their manager. They are 3 1-2 games in front of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who took a 9 to 3 shellacking from the Giants.

A bright pitching prevailed at Boston as Bob Weiland, Red Sox rookie, limited Detroit to four hits and won the first game of a double bill, 3 to 1. Vic Sorrell beat the Sox in the nightcap, 4 to 2.

The Boston Braves, who lost a 19-inning game and also a 15-inning one to the Cubs last week, continued their marathon habits when the first game of their double-header with the Cardinals went fourteen innings. The Braves won, 7 to 5, scoring two runs in the fourteenth. Urbanski started the rally with a triple, his fourth hit of the game.

The nightcap was called on account of darkness at the end of the sixth with the score 2 to 2.

FOUR CITIES AFTER BANK

One of Home Loan Banks To Be Placed in Midwest; Location Uncertain.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—Four Ohio cities—Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and Dayton—are being considered for the location of one of the eight to 12 banks to be established throughout the nation by the federal home loan board.

Of the four, it is a matter of speculation which, if any, appear favored for the selection. Final determination upon the city to house the bank in this region will probably be decided Tuesday, August 23, at a meeting of the loan board in Washington.

Location of the bank depends greatly upon the territory to comprise this district. One possible territorial set-up is Ohio and West Virginia or Kentucky, in which case, Cincinnati would appear to be the logical center for the establishment of one of the banks.

ALL HAVE CHANCE
Another combination, which is understood to be considered, would hook Ohio with Michigan. In this event, Toledo might have a chance. Toledo's advantages are being pressed by Congressman Wilbur M. White.

Strong efforts are being exerted in behalf of central Ohio, however, to have the bank for the Ohio district located in Columbus. Should Ohio be made a district by itself, Columbus undoubtedly be the preferred and most logical situation.

Representatives of Dayton are also making a strong bid for the bank under the leadership of Congressman Byron B. Harlan.

Final decision of the loan board will hinge, it is expected, upon the results of investigations being conducted by members of the board who are visiting the various cities and territories with a view toward outlining the best possible territorial set-ups.

Favoring the location of one of the banks in Ohio is the fact that the state has extensive building and loan associations and home mortgage operations.

Members of the board have indicated that fast action will follow determination of the territorial set-ups in getting the home loan banks into operation. Indications are, it is said, that the banks will be put into operation within 30 days after the selection of sites.

What's Doing In Sports?

The long arm of the St. Louis Cardinal system reached into its Rochester farm Monday calling George Pucinello, slugging outfielder, and Charlie Wilson, crash shortstop into the Card fold. Pucinello was up before for a short time and this year earned a new trial by leading the International league sluggers throughout the season.

Driven from the mound on each of his last three starts, Phil Weir, left hander, was to assume the mound this afternoon in an effort to turn by the Minneapolis Millers in the first game of a do-or-die series faced by the Columbus Red Birds.

Mrs. Edward Wysong, 55, mother of Bill, former Columbus, Cincinnati and Rochester baseball pitcher, was injured in an automobile accident near Wilmington Sunday.

Babe Ganzel, cocky Minneapolis third sacker, had a field day Sunday smacking Toledo pitchers, for two home runs and three singles and driving in five runs as the Millers slaughtered the Mud Hens, 18 to 6.

Bill Lee's 16-5 victory for the Red Birds over St. Paul Sunday was his sixteenth victory. He lost two after winning 15 before he could smother the sixteenth.

Byron Hunt, Columbus North high school athlete, a former sailor, and an all-round athlete, is leading the Central Ohio district publickns tournament with 149 on first 36 holes of 54-hole contest.

BIRDS IN TRACK MEET, VICTORIOUS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 22.—The Columbus Red Birds, giving the greatest exhibition of base running ever seen at a local ball park, today held a 16 to 5 victory over St. Paul as the result of Sunday's encounter, which gave them an even break in the four game series.

White Bill Lee kept the Apostles 12 hits well scattered over the innings, the Red Birds knocked out 17 safeties and stole nine bases off two of the Saint catchers, Bob Fenner and Angelo Guiliam. They would have pilfered more bases only the Bird runners were frequently called back because the batters tipped fouls.

Van Atta, Adkins and Trow served them up to the Red Birds for the Apostles and Jeffries, second baseman, hit a homer for the locals.

Columbus is in second place in the pennant race five and one half games behind the league leading Minneapolis Millers.

CLAIM PRISONER DIVERTED MONEY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—J. F. Haggerty, recently paroled from the Roseville brick plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary, where he served as a financial clerk, today was accused of diverting $627.00 of the state's money to his own use in a report to State Auditor Joseph Tracey by state examiner F. M. Hoopengartner.

Hoopengartner, in his report also criticized Deputy Warden B. H. Howell, who, it was charged, accompanied the convict to Zaner, where the prisoner was allowed to start a bank account.

In commenting on the case, Examiner Hoopengartner said: "Opportunity never smiled more kindly on any man than this thug at Roseville."

Two periods in the history of local government in the United States have been marked by free use of public credit: the first, 1830 to 1860, when many short railroads were built with the assistance of public credit and the second which began 30 years ago, in which credit was used principally for building roads and schools.

"The song which is to be one of the chief campaign songs was played by the orchestra and the words were written out and a copy passed to each guest with the request that we all join in singing. It has a sweet melody and in a very short time every person there was singing.

"One old gentleman about 70 years of age who sat near me certainly enjoyed it and sang with all his heart. The words and music are by Eddie Dowling and J. Fred Coots and the title is: 'Row, row, row With Roosevelt on the Good Ship U. S. A.'"

"The first verse is: 'Now's the time for everyone to cheer'

For election time is drawing near Put your cares away and view a brighter day

The hour for rejoicing now is here."

Sail with Franklin D. to victory and a new prosperity.

He's honest, he's strong and he's steady A chip off the block that gave us Teddy

"After the lovely meal we all shook hands with our adorable Franklin D. In the receiving line were his wife, daughter and son, Governor George White and daughter, Mary, Senator Bulkeley, James Cox and Newton Baker.

"To have a close up look at the Roosevelt was gratifying. One can easily see what a genuine, real stuff family they are and surely that is what we need of all things."

"The committeemen and women were asked to sit on the speaker's stand which we did. We were an official escort to the stadium. It would have been impossible for me to have felt more elated. The Queen of Sheba was an insignificant person compared to the way I felt and again and again I kept saying 'May God bless the dearest people in this world, My Pick-away-co friends for all the happiness they have given me.' I trust I shall never falter nor disappoint you in doing all in my power for the betterment of these deplorable times."

CITIES CAN SAVE BY CONSTRUCTING SEWER WORK NOW

Costs Are Down, Loans Available, President of Izaak Walton League Says.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—To save money and make jobs, cities in need of sewage disposal facilities should build them now, according to Dr. Preston Bradley, president of the Izaak Walton League of America. Not only are construction prices low, but Federal assistance in financing can be secured under the Emergency Relief Bill passed by the last Congress, he pointed out.

"Cities can obtain funds for building sewage treatment works under two different sections of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act," Dr. Bradley explained. "In states which permit operation of sewerage systems as public utilities, loans may be secured from the $1,500,000,000 which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to lend for self-liquidating construction."

"Under the utility method, users pay a small charge for sewerage service, just as they pay for water and electricity. This fee provides for operating costs, interest and retirement of the loan, making the plant self-supporting and obviating the need for any increase in taxes. Several states whose laws do not now cover this method of financing are preparing new legislation so that their cities can qualify for loans on self-liquidating construction to build needed sewerage works."

"The Relief Act also authorizes loans of $300,000,000 for relief work by states and their political subdivisions," he continued. "This money may be used to provide work relief instead of direct charity wherever practicable and under this section cities can get loans through their state governors to help finance projects on which men now jobless can be employed."

U. S. CROP REPORT BETTER THAN OHIO

Reports Show More Hay, Corn; Less Apples, Potatoes; Wheat Crop Less

Crop prospects in Ohio are quite different from the combined prospects of all states, according to crop reports just received by the department of rural economics, the Ohio State University.

Figures for the United States point to harvests of 10 per cent more corn, 9 million fewer bushels of potatoes, a large crop of hay than for the last two years but smaller than an average crop for the past five years, and an apple crop two-thirds as large as the bumper crop of 1931.

Total production of all feed grains, including corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums, appears now as if it will be larger than for any year in the past four and third largest since 1920.

Prospects in Ohio are poorer than are the prospects for the United States as a whole. Reports indicate probable harvests of corn 16 per cent less than last year, potatoes 10 per cent less, much less hay and about one-third as many apples as were harvested last year from full-laden trees.

The nation's wheat crop was 16 per cent less than last year's and 13 per cent smaller than average. In Ohio the tremendous wheat harvest of last year, 50 million, exceeded this year's crop by 13 million bushels.

No more investment is required for stock and equipment, and the overhead is no larger, to raise a litter of eight to ten pigs up to weaning time than is required to raise to this age a litter of four or five pigs.

Teacher and Slain Wife

H. C. Moor, 32-year-old high school teacher of Marshall, Ill., is shown with his wife, in connection with whose mysterious slaying Moor is held by authorities. Mrs. Moor's body was found in the family auto with two bullets in her heart, six miles from Marshall. Moor told police he was slugged unconscious by holdups and awakened to find his wife dead.

What's Doing In Sports?

The long arm of the St. Louis Cardinal system reached into its Rochester farm Monday calling George Pucinello, slugging outfielder, and Charlie Wilson, crash shortstop into the Card fold. Pucinello was up before for a short time and this year earned a new trial by leading the International league sluggers throughout the season.

Driven from the mound on each of his last three starts, Phil Weinert, left hander, was to assume the mound this afternoon in an effort to turn by the Minneapolis Millers in the first game of a do-or-die series faced by the Columbus Red Birds.

Ray Carpenter, Lancaster's strong boy wrestler, will meet Mauler Fred Moran in Cincinnati this evening.

Mrs. Edward Wyong, 55, mother of Biff, former Columbus, Cincinnati and Rochester baseball pitcher, was injured in an automobile accident near Wilmington Sunday.

Babe Ganzel, cocky Minnapolis third sacker, had a field day Sunday smacking Toledo pitchers for two home runs and three singles and driving in five runs as the Millers slaughtered the Mud Hens, 18 to 6.

Bill Lee's 16-5 victory for the Red Birds over St. Paul Sunday was his sixteenth victory. He lost two after winning 15 before he could smatch the sixteenth.

Byron Hunt, Columbus North high school athlete, a former sailor, and an all-round athlete, is leading the Central Ohio district publickns tournament with 149 on first 36 holes of 54-hole contest.

BIRDS IN TRACK MEET, VICTORIOUS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 22.—The Columbus Red Birds, giving the greatest exhibition of base running ever seen at a local ball park, today held a 16 to 5 victory over St. Paul as the result of Sunday's encounter, which gave them an even break in the four game series.

White Bill Lee kept the Apostles 12 hits well scattered over the innings, the Red Birds knocked out 17 safeties and stole nine bases off two of the Saint catchers, Bob Fenner and Angelo Giuliani. They would have pilfered more bases only the Bird runners were frequently called back because the batters tipped fouls.

Van Atta, Adkins and Trow served them up to the Red Birds for the Apostles and Jeffries, second baseman, hit a homer for the locals.

Columbus is in second place in the pennant race five and one half games behind the league leading Minneapolis Millers.

CLAIM PRISONER DIVERTED MONEY

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—J. F. Haggerty, recently paroled from the Roseville brick plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary, where he served as a financial clerk, today was accused of diverting $627.00 of the state's money to his own use in a report to State Auditor Joseph Tracey by state examiner F. M. Hoopengartner.

Hoopengartner, in his report, also criticized Deputy Warden B. H. Howell, who, it was charged, accompanied the convict to Zanesville where the prisoner was allowed to start a bank account.

In commenting on the case, Examiner Hoopengartner said: "Opportunity never smiled more kindly on any man than this thug at Roseville."

MISS DUNGAN

"A three course meal was served consisting of: A meion ball cock-tail for the first course; fried chicken with mashed potatoes and gravy, lima beans, tomato salad and rolls for the second course, and ice cream molded in rose shape, cake and coffee. Cigars were served to the men.

"The song which is to be one of the chief campaign songs was played by the orchestra and the words were written, out and a copy passed to each guest with the request that we all join in singing. It has a sweet melody and in a very short time every person there was singing.

"One old gentlemen about 70 years of age who sat near me certainly enjoyed it and sang with all his heart. The words and music are by Eddie Dowling and J. Fred Coots and the title is: "Row, row, row, with Roosevelt on the Good Ship U. S. A."

The first verse is: "Now's the time for everyone to cheer

For election time is drawing near Put your cares away and view a brighter day

Sail with Franklin D. to victory and a new prosperity.

He's honest, he's strong and he's steady

A chip off the block that gave us Teddy

On the good ship U. S. A."

"After the lovely meal we all shook hands with our adorable Franklin D. In the receiving line were his wife, daughter and son, Governor George White and daughter, Mary, Senator Bulkley, James Cox and Newton Baker.

"To have a close up look at the Roosevelts was gratifying. One can easily see what a genuine, real stuff family they are and surely that is what we need of all things.

"The committeemen and women were asked to sit on the speaker's stand which we did. We were his official escort to the stadium. It would have been impossible for me to have felt more elated. The Queen of Sheba was an insignificant person compared to the way I felt and again and again I kept saying "May God bless the dearest people in this world, My Pick-away-co friends for all the happiness they have given me." I trust I shall never falter nor disappoint you in doing all in my power for the betterment of these deplorable times."

CITIES CAN SAVE BY CONSTRUCTING SEWER WORK NOW

Costs Are Down, Loans Available, President of Izaak Walton League Says.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—To save money and make jobs, cities in need of sewage disposal facilities should build them now, according to Dr. Preston Bradley, president of the Izaak Walton League of America. Not only are construction prices low, but Federal assistance in financing can be secured under the Emergency Relief Bill passed by the last Congress, he pointed out.

"Cities can obtain funds for building sewage treatment works under two different sections of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act," Dr. Bradley explained. "In states which permit operation of sewerage systems as public utilities, loans may be secured from the $1,500,000,000 which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to lend for self-liquidating construction.

"Under the utility method, users pay a small charge for sewerage service, just as they pay for water and electricity. This fee provides for operating costs, interest and retirement of the loan, making the plant self-supporting and obviating the need for any increase in taxes. Several states whose laws do not now cover this method of financing are preparing new legislation so that their cities can qualify for loans on self-liquidating construction to build needed sewerage works.

"The Relief Act also authorizes loans of $300,000,000 for relief work by states and their political subdivisions," he continued. "This money may be used to provide work relief instead of direct charity wherever practicable, and under this section cities can get loans through their state governors to help finance projects on which men now jobless can be employed."

U. S. CROP REPORT BETTER THAN OHIO

Reports Show More Hay, Corn; Less Apples, Potatoes; Wheat Crop Less

Crop prospects in Ohio are quite different from the combined prospects of all states, according to reports just received by the department of rural economics, the Ohio State University.

Figures for the United States point to harvests of 10 per cent more corn, 9 million fewer bushels of potatoes, a large crop of hay than for the last two years but smaller than an average crop for the past five years, and an apple crop two-thirds as large as the bumper crop of 1931.

Total production of all feed grains, including corn, oats, barley and grain sorghums, appears now as if it will be larger than for any year in the past four and third largest since 1920.

Prospects in Ohio are poorer than are the prospects for the United States as a whole. Reports indicate probable harvests of corn 16 per cent less than last year, potatoes 10 per cent less, much less hay and about one-third as many apples as were harvested last year from full-laden trees.

The nation's wheat crop was 19 per cent less than last year's and 13 per cent smaller than average. In Ohio the tremendous wheat harvest of last year, 50 million, exceeded this year's crop by 13 million bushels.

No more investment is required for stock and equipment, and the overhead is no larger, to raise a litter of eight to ten pigs up to weaning time than is required to raise to this age a litter of four or five pigs.

Bonds In Demand

BANKERS bid for new offerings of Maine and Maryland state bonds with an eagerness that was reminiscent of competitive bond buying during the boom years.

Both offerings were comparatively small issues, and yet seven syndicates wanted the Maine issue and five competed for the Maryland bonds. This was unexpected but not nearly so unexpected as the fact that all bids were above par. The Maine issue of $1,000,000 was sold at $102.179 and the Maryland bonds brought $105.607 for the issue of $3,076,000.

This highly satisfactory development in the bond market, which has known 3 years of distress, was not due to abnormally high interest rates. It was due rather to a strong demand for government bonds and to a flood of money returning to circulation.

Maine and Maryland could not have sold their bonds at a premium had their fiscal house not been in order. Both have balanced budgets, made possible by habitual restraint in the matter of borrowing money and by the reorganization of their governments effecting the economies present conditions demand.

There are some states which should be cautioned against raising false hopes on the strength of the enviable credit rating of Maine and Maryland. It is feared that several have no other bond market than civic pride and patriotism.

Recuperation

PESSIMISM as a permanent mood is alien to the American temperament. The people of the United States have a good deal of the buoyancy and quick recuperative power of youth. If they are easily thrown into a panic by economic and financial reverses, it is equally true that confidence will have more to do. And the restoration of national confidence will have more to do with the return of national prosperity than anything the government might do.

The country is "snapping out" of its pessimistic mood of the last three years. The bond market shows it. The farm belt feels it, and the people everywhere are catching the new spirit.

For very good reasons are the farmers happier. In the last six weeks rising commodity prices have increased the wealth of Iowa farmers alone by $30,000,000. When cattle prices reach the top price for the year in mid-summer and the egg price on the farm doubles there is good cause for three cheers, if not four.

If anything is established about the world-wide depression it is that it is fundamentally due to the abnormal fall of commodity prices. Which means that the most important indication of recovery must be sought in raising commodity prices.

Raising farm prices means an increase in buying power at the base of the economic structure the effects of which will be felt in every stratum.

Feeling Old

It isn't a case of, "Cheer up." You'll live to be a hundred, as it is of cheer up and live to be a hundred, according to a new theory of life expounded by Prof. Walter R. Miles, of Stanford University.

He reasons that deterioration in old people is not due chiefly to any inevitable defect in the bodily machinery, but appears more in feeling than it exists in fact. The slowing down of the activities of aged persons is attributed to a psychological defense measure.

There may be something in the thought that this slower pace after middle life is a concession to opinion and an effect of tradition. The aging person so frequently is told he is getting old and must slow down that he obeys as bowing to the inevitable. In like manner, probably many succumb to ailments which they might resist were they not induced by their frame of mind to accept them as necessary and invincible enemies. It is quite possible that the age limit might be considerably extended were it not for the age-old tradition that man's allotted span is three score years and ten.

Even though this novel and hopeful theory may not be biologically true it will prove useful if it gives the old crank and misanthrope a new and more optimistic outlook on life. They may not live longer but they will live happier and make the world a better place in which to live.

It is reported that if worst comes to worst Jimmy Walker will run for governor. Or was it that if he

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FIFTY-THREE

She wanted Bess to come to San Francisco for the two weeks, to bring all the children, and stay with her at the Fairmont. Robin should have children to play with, and they were his own cousins...

But Bess, shy or independent, would not come. She invited Lily Lou to come up to Woodlake after the opera season, instead. "I can easily take care of you and the boy," she wrote, "but don't bring any French maids with you. We still eat in the kitchen and proud of it."

She would have loved to see her father. But he was off in the back country working on a sheep ranch. May said, and there wasn't any way of getting mail to him.

May didn't have much good to report of him. It seems that he was "paying attention" to Mrs. Veemer, the dressmaker in Woodlake, quite an ordinary woman, red cheeked, well upholstered, good natured, and certainly not too refined.

"He should be restrained!" May said. "The old fool, wanting to get married again, after all the putting up Mother did with him! After the way she tried to make a decent citizen out of him!"

When Lily Lou did not answer, she cried, "Oh, well, you've been away so long that nothing matters to you. You don't care what Dad does, and we're all just ancient history to you. I don't suppose you'd even know Kentfield Sargent if you saw him. You know, you almost missed everything, just by being so silly as to go and get married the way you did! By this time you'd have been an old married woman, like me, and maybe a couple of kids—"

Lily Lou smiled. "What about Robin?"

"Oh, he's just a fad with you. A child that isn't your own isn't any more trouble than any other kind of pet. Bess said that! It's just an extravagance, that's all. And here you are, with the world at your fingertips—with everything!"

"Yes," Lily Lou said, "with everything!"

And after May had gone she took Robin on her lap and played Cowboy and Indian until he was sleepy. "Yes—everything," she thought—"or, as near everything as one gets—"

And then she smiled a little as she thought of what May would have thought if she had told her she would have traded everything for what she had—a home, even a shabby home, and someone who loved her—

Traviata was a triumph. With Tony conducting, Tony ever watchful of her interests, Tony jealous of every pat of applause anyone else got!

Madame Butterfly on Wednesday, and a packed house. That was the big night for her. Snow Maiden was a good part, she liked it, but a matinee didn't count so much.

There had been letters and flowers and friends—Tony's friends—friends of the theater and the world of art and music—

She wasn't disappointed. She had not expected any of the people she used to know. Once upon a time she would have expected Ken, but if he failed her when her mother died, naturally he'd fail her now.

She couldn't help hoping that Ken's father would read about her. He had laughed at her when she said she'd be a star. Well, she was. Her name had been written in electric lights. She was young yet—years ahead—for greater glories. Might as well fight for them. It would help Robin...

She brought him with her, to see the Snow Maiden. It was a treat he had promised him. Bess had not come down from the lake with the children. They would have loved the fairy opera.

She thrilled to see her little boy's sparkling eyes, as he stood in her dressing room and admired her in her gown of frost and stardust. "You look just like a fairy princess," he told her, seriously.

"A rather made-up princess," she told him, laughing at her reflection in the brightly illumined mirrors. But she did look like a child's dream of fairyland, with the glorious glittering head-dress, the filmy white of the gown, her black hair in long curls, like a doll's, cascading down her back.

After the performance Marie brought Robin back to the dressing room. He was scarlet with excitement.

"Mother, I wish you would be the Sleeping Beauty some time. I would like to see you be the Sleeping Beauty. Don't they have an opera of that? Then I wish to see one with cowboys, like Auntie Vera's opera, mother, can't we have one like that, please?"

He was talking about Vera Votipaka, and her role of Girl of the Golden West, with which he had been much impressed.

"Some day, we'll see, darling!" She knelt beside him, still in grease paint and glittering draperies, holding his little hands.

George Farmers, the publicity manager, tapped at her door.

"There's an old fellow who's determined to get in to see you, Madame Lansing. Says his name is Lansing, and he's a distant relative. Do you want to see him?"

Lily Lou's heart beat. Stopped beating for a second. Had her own father—it was he!

It was he. He followed close at the publicity manager's heels, a little shy, but not too much impressed with all the show, the unfamiliar surroundings, the little group of admirers who waited outside.

"Dad!" she hugged him, laughing and crying, a little hysterical at the thought of having him here, in the city, at her performance—

She scanned his weatherbeaten face anxiously. He hadn't changed much. He seemed a little younger, a little happier, a little more like

Did You Ever Stop To Think—

Frederick L. Yates, publisher of the Sheridan, Wyo. Press, says:

That a newspaper is the biggest slice of life that can be bought for a few cents.

A newspaper is more powerful than ancient kings and stronger than the law of the land. Ancient kings did things by virtue of force and strength. The law does things by courts and juries. The newspaper does things by education. And once mankind grasps an idea, is convinced of its aptness, no king nor law can stand against this conviction.

The newspapers, therefore, must abandon their gay attitude of irresponsibility, their semi-sophistic notions of sophistication and smart cracks.

Everyone on a paper from the lowliest cub to the publisher must have a full realization of the responsibility to the age in which he lives. The standards of the eye shade, the shirt sleeves and the loose talk and cynicism often found in the journalistic world are as colligate as the roll-necked sweater and the Oxford bags.

The attitude of many sheets toward their obligations reminds me

Don't Overtax Your Heart! It Has Heavy Work, and Often Needs Rest

Many Suffer Disability in Middle Age Because They Have Neglected Taking Proper Care of the Organ That Pumps Blood Through the Body, Until Too Late for a Cure.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HEART disease continues to be one of the leading causes of disability in middle age. Many cases of heart disease could have been prevented if proper precautions had been taken. Too often the sufferer goes to a physician too late, when little help can be given.

The heart pumps blood through the body. By this action the blood, rich in oxygen from the lungs and nutritive elements from the food, is distributed to the organs and tissues of the body. This means that the heart has to do a great deal of work.

The heart is made up of many muscles and if these are weakened, either as a result of infection or disease, their efficiency is decreased and less work should be demanded of the heart.

It is here that a great mistake is made. Few realize that the heart, like any other muscle in the body, requires rest when fatigued. If the heart muscle is allowed to rest and is given proper care, it becomes refreshed and strengthened, able to resume the normal demands made upon it.

Excessive calls for work must never be placed upon a damaged and diseased heart. Severe and exerting labor must be avoided. Enough hours of sleep and sufficient rest are imperative. It is often advisable to take an afternoon nap, and not to depend on regular hours in bed for the needed heart rest.

Violent exercise is a common cause of heart disease. It is dangerous even for a normal heart, and suicidal for one who has a damaged heart.

Overweight is another common and neglected cause for heart disease. Carelessness in eating, especially overeating, leads to heart trouble. Chronic indigestion, constipation, infected teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gallbladder and other diseased organs are contributory factors in producing heart disease.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of rest. In advanced cases of heart disease it may be necessary to have periods of complete rest for days, or even weeks. This is the only way to permit the heart to recuperate.

I know many persons who take one or two hours of rest in the middle of the day. They are sensible. They realize their weakness, and know that rest is the only way to prevent heart failure. It is only a foolish man who whips his tired horse homeward bound.

Sufferers from heart disease should report to their physician at regular intervals. Examination of heart, lungs, and blood pressure at stated times is a wise precaution. An examination of the urine should be made at each visit.

Please bear in mind that heart disease does not mean shortened life; but it does mean that your expectation of life is determined by the care and respect you give your heart.

The Daily Horoscope

Monday, August 22, 1932

This is read as a very active day, with many promising influences, the Astrologers say. The early morning hours are restful, with dreams of a soothing nature.

Many of the day's activities will be accomplished through energy aspects favor new plans, tending to original thinking and one should attend to all important matters requiring thought.

The earlier part of the day is especially good for dealing with those employed, particularly mechanics, iron workers, carpenters, machinists, barbers and hardware dealers. Such vibrations as these tone and impels one to action for the sake of securing that which is desired.

Operations performed today should be very successful and it is expected the patients may react from their effects readily. Dentists are likely to find their patients less finicky today.

EMERYN McHALE "FINEST OUTDOOR GIRL"

Just 17 and in New York for the first time, slim, blonde Emeryn McHale, hard riding cow girl from the wide open spaces, may be considered unique among her sex. Try to imagine a beautiful girl who has no ambitions to shine on the stage or screen; who doesn't drink or smoke; who hasn't a boy friend and who never uses cosmetics. Well, hardly ever, for she occasionally gilds the lily with a wee touch of lipstick. Emeryn is in the big city as a result of her having won the title "Finest Outdoor Girl in California" at the recent rodeo at Salinas, Cal. Her trip East was the prize. She has been riding those wild Western bronchos since she was six years old and the more frisky they come, the better she likes them. She is a student at Placerville, Cal., High School, where she is specializing in the subjects that are necessary equipment of a good private secretary. Yes, that's her ambition, although she will feel a desk chair somewhat strange after being accustomed to sit in the saddle of the mass of lively dynamite laughingly called a cow pony.

AT THE GRAND

To lovers of music there is nothing that excels the melodious negro "Spirituals," that is, provided they are presented in the proper setting.

In "Lena Rivers," now playing at the Grand Theatre, Tiffany musicians have composed two spirituals for Clarence Muse, popular radio and motion picture artist, which Muse considers are the nearest to perfection in modern negro melodies that he has yet sung.

Muse's beautiful baritone voice is particularly adaptable to the sensitive microphone, and he is one of the few colored singers who have attained recognition both on the screen and the radio. So popular has he become on the Pacific coast it is often necessary for him to go directly from work at the studios to radio stations for broadcasting without removing his makeup.

AT THE CLIFTONA

There are traitors in the ranks of the blondes!

Anita Loos and Jean Harlow have deserted.

Miss Loos appears as the adapter of the Katharine Brush novel, "Red Headed Woman," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer screen production now showing at the Cliftona Theatre.

And Jean Harlow has changed from platinum blonde to a red head to portray the title role—the girl who wrecks the home of Chester Morris.

BOTH STANDARD BEARERS

Ever since the authorized "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," Miss Loos

has been acknowledged the standard bearer of the light-headed sisterhood. And Miss Harlow launched the platinum blonde vogue which is now raging.

Bonds In Demand

BANKERS bid for new offerings of Maine and Maryland state bonds with an eagerness that was reminiscent of competitive bond buying during the boom years.
Both offerings were comparatively small issues, and yet seven syndicates wanted the Maine issue and five competed for the Maryland bonds. This was unexpected but not nearly so unexpected as the fact that all bids were above par. The Maine issue of $1,000,000 was sold at $102.179 and the Maryland bonds brought $105.607 for the issue of $3,078,000.
This highly satisfactory development in the bond market, which has known 3 years of distress, was not due to abnormally high interest rates. It was due rather to a strong demand for government bonds and to a flood of money returning to circulation.
Maine and Maryland could not have sold their bonds at a premium had their fiscal house not been in order. Both have balanced budgets, made possible by habitual restraint in the matter of borrowing money and by the reorganization of their governments effecting the economies present conditions demand.
There are some states which should be cautioned against raising false hopes on the strength of the enviable credit rating of Maine and Maryland. It is feared that several have no other bond market than civic pride and patriotism.

Recuperation

PESSIMISM as a permanent mood is alien to the American temperament. The people of the United States have a good deal of the buoyancy and quick recuperative power of youth. If they are easily thrown into a panic by economic and financial reverses, it is equally true that confidence will have more to do with the return of national prosperity than anything the government might do.
The country is "snapping out" of its pessimistic mood of the last three years. The bond market shows it. The farm belt feels it, and the people everywhere are catching the new spirit.
For very good reasons are the farmers happier. In the last six weeks grain commodity prices have increased the average Iowa farmer alone by $20,000,000. When cattle prices reach the top price for the year in mid-summer, and the egg price on the farm doubles there is good cause for three cheers, if not four.
If anything is established about the world-wide depression it is that it is fundamentally due to the abnormal fall of commodity prices. Which means that the most important indication of recovery must be sought in raising commodity prices.
Raising farm prices means an increase in buying power at the base of the economic structure the effects of which will be felt in every stratum.

Feeling Old

IT isn't a case of, "Cheer up! You'll live to be a hundred, as it is of cheer up and live to be a hundred, according to a new theory of life expounded by Prof. Walter R. Miles, of Stanford University.
He reasons that deterioration in old people is not due chiefly to any inevitable defect in the bodily machinery, but appears more in feeling than it exists in fact. The slowing down of the activities of aged persons is attributed to a psychological defense measure.
There may be something in the thought that this slower pace after middle life is a concession to opinion and an effect of tradition. The aging person so frequently is told he is getting old and just slow down that he obeys as bowing to the inevitable. In like manner probably many succumb to ailments which they might resist were they not induced by their frame of mind to accept them as necessary and invincible enemies. It is quite possible that the age limit might be considerably extended were it not for the age-old tradition that man's allotted span is three score years and ten.
Even though this novel and hopeful theory may not be biologically true it will prove useful if it gives the old crank and misanthrope a new and more optimistic outlook on life. They may not live longer but they will live happier and make the world a better place in which to live.

It's reported that if worst comes to worst...

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON
COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FIFTY-THREE

She wanted Bess to come to San Francisco for the two weeks, to bring all the children, and stay with her at the Fairmont. Robin should have children to play with, and they were his own cousins...
But Bess, shy or independent, would not come. She invited Lily Lou to come up to Woodlake after the opera season, instead. "I can easily take care of you and the boy," she wrote, "but don't bring any French maids with you. We still eat in the kitchen and proud of it."

She would have loved to see her father. But he was off in the back country working on a sheep ranch. May said, and there wasn't any way of getting mail to him.

May didn't have much good to report of him. It seems that he was "paying attention" to Mrs. Veemer, the dressmaker in Woodlake, quite an ordinary woman, red cheeked, well upholstered, good natured, and certainly not too refined.

"He should be restrained!" May said. "The old fool, wanting to get married again, after all the putting up Mother did with him! After the way she tried to make a decent citizen out of him!"

When Lily Lou did not answer, she cried, "Oh, well, you've been away so long that nothing matters to you. You don't care what Dad does, and we're all just ancient history to you. I don't suppose you'd even know Kentfield Sargent if you saw him. You know, you were lucky to get out of that. Good heavens, Lily Lou, you almost missed everything, just by being so silly as to go and get married the way you did! By this time you'd have been an old married woman, like me, and maybe a couple of kids—"

Lily Lou smiled. "What about Robin?"
"Oh, he's just a fad with you. A child that isn't your own isn't any more trouble than any other kind of pet. Bess said that! It's just an extravagance, that's all. And here you are, with the world at your fingertips—with everything!"

"Yes," Lily Lou said, "with everything!"
And after May had gone she took Robin on her lap and played Cowboy and Indian until he was sleepy.

"Yes—everything," she thought—"or, as near everything as one gets—"

And then she smiled a little as she thought of what May would have thought if she had told her she would have traded everything for what she had—a home, even a shabby home, and someone who loved her—

Traviata was a triumph. With Tony conducting, Tony ever watchful of her interests, Tony jealous of every pat of applause anyone else got!

Madame Butterfly on Wednesday, and a packed house. That was the big night for her. Snow Maiden was a good part, she liked it, but a matinee didn't count so much.

There had been letters and flowers and friends—Tony's friends—friends of the theater and the world of art and music—

She wasn't disappointed. She had not expected any of the people she used to know. Once upon a time she would have expected Ken, but if he failed her when her mother died, naturally he'd fail her now.

She couldn't help hoping that Ken's father would read about her. He had laughed at her when she said she'd be a star. Well, she was. Her name had been written in electric lights. She was young yet—years ahead—for greater glories.

It might as well fight for them. It would help Robin...
She brought him with her, to see the Snow Maiden. It was a treat she had promised him. Bess had not come down from the lake with the children. They would have loved the fairy opera.

"There's an old fellow outside who's determined to see you, Madame Lansing," said Farmers.

She thrilled to see her little boy's sparkling eyes, as he stood in her dressing room and admired her in her gown of frost and stardust. "You look just like a fairy princess," he told her, seriously.

"A rather made-up princess," she told him, laughing at her reflection in the brightly illumined mirrors. But she did look like a child's dream of fairyland, with the glorious glittering head-dress, the filmy white of the gown, her black hair in long curls, like a doll's, cascading down her back.

After the performance Marie brought Robin back to the dressing room. He was scarlet with excitement.

"Mother, I wish you would be the Sleeping Beauty some time. I would like to see you be the Sleeping Beauty. Don't they have an opera of that? Then I wish to see one with cowboys, like Auntie Vera's opera, mother, can't we have one like that, please?"

He was talking about Vera Votipa, and her role of Girl of the Golden West, with which he had been much impressed.

"Some day, we'll see, darling!" She knelt beside him, still in grease paint and glittering draperies, holding his little hands.

George Farmers, the publicity manager, tapped at her door. "There's an old fellow who's determined to get in to see you, Madame Lansing. Says his name is Lansing, and he's a distant relative. Do you want to see him?"

Lily Lou's heart beat. Had. Stopped beating for a second. Had. Her own father—it must be!

It was. He followed close at the publicity manager's heels, a little shy, but not too much impressed with all the show, the unfamiliar surroundings, the little group of admirers who waited outside.

"Dad!" she burst out, laughing and crying, a little hysterical at the thought of having him here, in the city, at her performance.

She scanned his weatherbeaten face anxiously. He hadn't changed much. He seemed a little younger, a little happier, a little more like James Carpenter and Edworth Washburn on the T. J. Morris farm was a real success, 60 couples attending.

Frederick L. Yates, publisher of the Sheridan, Wyo. Press, says that a newspaper is the biggest force of life that can be brought to a few cents.

A newspaper is more powerful than ancient kings and stronger than the law of the land. An ancient king did things by virtue of his strength. The law does things by virtue of its power.

The newspaper has things by education. And once mankind grasps that, he is convinced of its supremacy. No king nor law can stand against this conviction.

Don't Overtax Your Heart! It Has Heavy Work, and Often Needs Rest

Many Suffer Disability in Middle Age Because They Have Neglected Taking Proper Care of the Organ That Pumps Blood Through the Body, Until Too Late for a Cure.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HEART disease continues to be one of the leading causes of disability in middle age. Many cases of heart disease could have been prevented if proper precautions had been taken. Too often the sufferer goes to a physician too late, when little help can be given.

The heart pumps blood through the body. By this action the blood, rich in oxygen from the lungs and nutritive elements from the food, is distributed to the organs and tissues of the body. This means that the heart has to do a great deal of work.

The heart is made up of many muscles, and if these are weakened, either as a result of infection or disease, their efficiency is decreased and less work should be demanded of the heart.

It is here that a great mistake is made. Few realize that the heart, like any other muscle in the body, requires rest when fatigued. If the heart muscle is allowed to rest and is given proper care, it becomes refreshed and strengthened, able to resume the normal demands made upon it.

Excessive calls for work must never be placed upon a damaged and diseased heart. Severe and exerting labor must be avoided. Enough hours of sleep and sufficient rest are imperative. It is often advisable to take an afternoon nap, and not to depend on regular hours in bed for the needed heart rest.

Violent exercise is a common cause of heart disease. It is dangerous even for a normal heart, and suicidal for one who has a damaged heart.

Overweight is another common and neglected cause for heart disease. Careless eating, especially overeating, leads to heart trouble. Chronic indigestion, constipation, infected teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gallbladder and other diseased organs are contributory factors in producing heart disease.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of rest. In advanced cases of heart disease it may be necessary to have periods of complete rest for days, or even weeks. This is the only way to permit the heart to recuperate.

I know many persons who take one or two hours of rest in the middle of the day. They are sensible. They realize their weakness, and know that rest is the only way to prevent heart failure. It is only a foolish man who whips his tired horse homeward bound.

Sufferers from heart disease should report to their physician at regular intervals. Examination of heart, lungs, and blood pressure at stated times is a wise precaution. An examination of the urine should be made at each visit.

Please bear in mind that heart disease does not mean shortened life; but it does mean that your expectation of life is determined by the care and respect you give your heart.

The Daily Horoscope

Monday, August 22, 1932

This is read as a very active day, with many promising influences. The Astrologers say. The early morning hours are restful, with dreams of a soothing nature. Many of the day's activities will be accomplished through energy aspects favor new plans, tending to original thinking and one should attend to all important matters requiring thought.

The earlier part of the day is especially good for dealing with those employed, particularly mechanics, iron workers, carpenters, machinists, barbers and hardware dealers. Such vibrations as these tone and impels one to action for the sake of securing that which is desired.

Operations performed today should be very successful and it is expected the patients may react from their effects readily. Dentists are likely to find their patients less finicky today.

Political party differences among the women, imparting a quarrelsome spirit, may encounter a strong opposition. Some one may be singled out for hostility in the next few days in Washington indisposition or possibly the death of a political member may be looked for. Astrologers foretell.

The afternoon and evening hours are good for dealing with professional people, such as bankers, judges, book salesmen, also for making plans, holding conferences and obtaining information.

Under this rule of the stars the mind will be active with much broadness of view and one's intelligence should be directed to shrewd bargaining, persuasive speech and writing.

During the evening hours, young folks and older women will be cheerful and much given to amusement, visiting and holding parties and those dealing with commodities calculated to satisfy the public taste for finery and delicacies should profit.

Those having birthdays on or about the first of May, September, January and March may be favored today.

Children born on this day will probably be magnetic, highly endowed, possessing excellent judgment and good health.

The subjects of this sign of Virgo, born as they are on the cusp of Leo, make good neighbors and never make good with other people's affairs.

Claude Achille DeBussy, 1862, the French composer, was born on this day. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include John R. Welsh banker; John Hill Burton, 1899, Scottish jurist and historian.

WOODMAN REVIEW HERE PLEASING

Woodman teams from Chillicothe, Columbus, Williamsport and Circleville participated in the first battalion review held here by the Modern Woodman of America at Heise field Sunday afternoon.

Ohio Camp of Columbus gave an exhibition drill of fancy maneuvers before a large crowd at the field, performing intricate drills much to the satisfaction of the audience.

Major E. J. Johnson of Columbus, the reviewing officer, commented favorably on the review and complimented the local squad for its good work in the short time of practice it has held.

Much of the glamour of the review was missing when the local Legion Drum Corps could not make its appearance due to absence of several members.

The next review of this nature will be held in Detroit when teams from Ohio and Michigan will convene there for a district encampment.

Members of the local Woodman squad are: Proctor Baughman, Asa Robinson, Reynold Greene, Ray Beery, Harold Baughman, Howard Leist, Clyde Leist, Dill Smith and Raymond Smith.

JUDGE SHOOK

local purposes can not be distributed to another community for purely local purposes.

Judge Shook also asserted that the citizens of several subdivisions of Hamilton-co and the state "are being deprived of property rights guaranteed in the state constitution."

Sections 6, 7, and 8 of the legislation, Judge Shook ruled "are arbitrary, unreasonable and unjust in their application; they are temporary in their operation and appear to be of an experimental nature."

He also declared that no attention had been paid to different tax rates in the different cities as a basis upon which to arrive at a quota of the different subdivisions under the distributive section.

Even if the tax were a state levy, Judge Shook said, the state would be assuming debts of cities or townships which would violate the state constitution.

The contention of Gorman, however, that the operation of the law constituted discrimination against citizens of Hamilton-co contrary to the 14th amendment of the constitution of the United States, was refused by Judge Shook.

Judge Shook said that on the basis of figures which he studied, 15 counties exceeded their quotas under the law and these 15 counties were being forced through the legislation to support the local government of the remaining 73 counties in Ohio.

FEARS RESULTS

"This method of distribution is apt to encourage laxness among lay officials in the performance of their duties and to discourage the vigilant and efficient public servants," Judge Shook said.

O. S. U. STUDENTS TO BENEFIT FROM LOWER LIVING COSTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—Living costs for students at Ohio State University are down from $60 to $75 less than a year ago, a survey made by university officials shows.

The savings are made possible chiefly by reductions in board and room prices. Exclusive of personal expenses, which vary greatly with the individual, the survey indicates that the 1932-1933 freshman can get through the school year on about $450 in the case of men and about $480 for women. This includes tuition and other fees books and living expenses.

Single rooms for men students can be had as low as $8 per month, Fred J. Milligan, assistant dean of men, found an average of $12. A year ago the average was $15. Double rooms average $20 per month against $24 a year ago. Board can be had as low as $4 per week for three meals a day. The average is $5.50 as against $6.50 a year ago. Board and room together account for about half the out-of-town student's expenses.

AVERAGE COST

For next fall's freshman, the average cost is estimated about as follows: Matriculation fee (paid once) $10.00

Tuition and special fees $69.00 Books and supplies $35.00 Laboratory deposit (varies) $30.00 Military uniform $23.60 Board at $5.50 per week $198.00 Room at $12 per month $108.00 $473.60

Rates in the three dormitories for women students operated by the university were reduced on an average of about 10 per cent, effective June 1. General student expenses here, officials believe, will be the lowest in years and compare favorably with the cost at other colleges and universities, large and small.

Miss Irene Ruhlman Becomes Bride Of North Canton Man

Beautiful in every detail was the wedding of Miss Irene Ruhlman, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Ruhlman to Mr. Charles G. Keck, son of Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Keck of North Canton, which was solemnized Sunday at the Calvary Evangelical church.

The nuptial service was read at 3:45 o'clock by the bride's father assisted by Rev. Keck before the altar decorated with palms, and pink and yellow gladioli. A pink and yellow color scheme was carried out and a white covering was used in the aisle through which the bridal party went to the altar.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Dondus Ruhlman, sister of the bride, sang "At Dawning" by Cadman and "Because" by D'Hardenlot. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. R. Wendell of Marion, who played Lohengrin's bridal march and during the double ring ceremony the "Venetian Love Song" and "Melody of Love".

Elsie Mae Barr, of Stoutsville, niece of the bridegroom, was ring bearer, and led the bridal party. She was attired in pink organdie with white shoes. She was followed by Mrs. C. D. Fox of Stryker, O., as matron of honor. Mrs. Fox wore yellow embroidered organdie and carried an arm bouquet of briar cliff roses.

The flower girl, Barbara Harter of Norwood, preceded the bride and wore yellow veil with white accessories.

The bride's gown was of white net trimmed in lace over white silk with a veil of silk net trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and scabiosa. Rev. C. R. Wendell of Marion served as best man and ushers were Alvin W. Barr, brother-in-law of the bride and Kenneth, Homer and Thomas Keck, brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held following the impressive ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, for the immediate families and a few invited guests.

The couple left immediately after for a short wedding trip. For her going away outfit, Mrs. Keck was attired in Jericho Navy Blue crepe with matching accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Bowling Green State college and for the past year has been a teacher in the Columbus public schools.

Mr. Keck is a graduate of Ohio State university and will teach at Richfield, O., this fall.

The couple will be at home to their friends at West Richfield, O., after Sept. 12.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Keck, the Misses Bessie, Isa, Olive, Edith, Ruth, Catherine and Frances Keck and Kenneth, Homer and Thomas Keck of North Canton; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Barr and daughter, Margaret Jean, Elsie Mae and Margaret Ann of Stoutsville; Mrs. E. E. Ruhlman, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mayer, Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Wendell of Marion; Barbara Harter of Norwood; Mrs. C. D. O. S. U. STUDENTS TO BENEFIT FROM LOWER LIVING COSTS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 22.—Living costs for students at Ohio State University are down from $60 to $75 less than a year ago, a survey made by university officials shows. The savings are made possible chiefly by reductions in board and room prices. Exclusive of personal expenses, which vary greatly with the individual, the survey indicates that the 1932-1933 freshman can get through the school year on about $450 in the case of men and about $480 for women. This includes tuition and other fees, books and living expenses.

Single rooms for men students can be had as low as $8 per month, Fred J. Milligan, assistant dean of men, found an average $12. A year ago the average was $15. Double rooms average $20 per month against $24 a year ago. Board can be had as low as $4 per week for three meals a day. The average is $5.50 as against $6.50 a year ago. Board and room together account for about half the out-of-town student's expenses.

AVERAGE COST
For next fall's freshman, the average cost is estimated about as follows:
Matriculation fee (paid)
Milk and laundry $10.00

Tuition and special fees .. $69.00
Books and supplies $35.00
Laboratory deposit (varies) $30.00
Military uniform $23.60
Board at $5.50 per week $198.00
Room at $12 per month .. $108.00
$473.60

Rates in the three dormitories for women students operated by the university were reduced on an average of about 10 per cent, effective June 1. General student expenses here, officials believe, will be the lowest in years and compare favorably with the cost at other colleges and universities, large and small.
